The Last Supper

This portrayal of the Last Supper uses a cross to represent each person. The large cross at the center symbolizes the person of Jesus Christ, while the small crosses represent the twelve disciples. Please notice that the fourth cross from the left is upside down. It represents Peter, who felt unworthy to die upright like the Master, and chose instead to die head down. The cross just to the right of the large cross represents John, ‘the beloved disciple.” The cross to the far right at the end of the table with the money bag, represents Judas who betrayed his Master for thirty pieces of silver.

The disciples from left to right are: Philip, and Bartholomew; then Peter, Matthew and James the Younger, John, James the Elder, Thaddeus and Simeon, Thomas and then Judas.
